

A Theory of Local Entrepreneurship in the Knowledge Economy

Pierre-Andre Julien

Professor Emeritus in the Economics of SMEs, Institute of Research on Small Business, Universite du Quebec a Trois-Rivieres, Canada

HOCHSCHULE
LIECHTENSTEIN
Bibliothek

Edward Elgar
Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Foreword by Anders Lundstrom	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction
PART I CONTEXT: THE KNOWLEDGE ECONOMY AND DIFFERENT DYNAMICS
1 The knowledge economy: uncertainty, ambiguity and potential	28
2 Differentiated entrepreneurship: regional and local disparities	46
PART II THE MAIN ACTORS: ENTREPRENEURS, ORGANIZATIONS AND MILIEUX - THEIR CAPACITY TO DEVELOP KNOWLEDGE
3 Entrepreneurs	74
4 The learning organization: information-gathering strategies used by small businesses	95
5 The entrepreneurial milieu: the key to creating a distinct local identity	116
PART III THE FACTORS: INFORMATION, NETWORKS AND INNOVATION - NECESSARY AND SUFFICIENT CONDITIONS FOR ENTREPRENEURSHIP
6 Information: the first necessary condition for reducing uncertainty and ambiguity	142
7 Networks: a second necessary condition - the sharing of information leading to innovation	162
8 Innovation: a sufficient condition	183

Contents

PART IV THE FUNCTIONING OF LOCAL
ENTREPRENEURSHIP: DYNAMISM
THROUGH CONTAGION

9	Intelligence networking: developing a dynamic regional fabric	215
10	Entrepreneurial contagion and knowledge acquisition	236
11	Conclusion: towards a new theory of entrepreneurship	254
	Bibliography	275
	Index	311