

Heinrich Arnold · Michael Erner
Peter Möckel · Christopher Schläffer
Editors

Applied Technology and Innovation Management

Insights and Experiences
from an Industry-Leading Innovation Centre

Applied Technology and Innovation Management

The Importance of Innovation Management at Deutsche Telekom – Technological Uncertainty and Open Innovation	1
Deutsche Telekom Laboratories as a Testbed for Modern Technology and Innovation Management	5
A. Information Acquisition in a World of Knowledge
Strategic Foresight	12
Integration of Academic Research into Innovation Projects: The Case of Collaboration with a University Research Institute	25
B. Organizing for Getting the Most out of Openness
Implementing Open Innovation to Benefit from External Dynamics of Innovation	36
Partnering for Research and Development within an Open Innovation Framework	48
Business (Lead) Customer Involvement in the Innovation Process	59
C. Early Stage Market Research and Innovation Marketing
Tools for User-Driven Innovation at Deutsche Telekom Laboratories	72
Options for Customer Integration in the Open Innovation Paradigm at Deutsche Telekom	89
Segmentation and Evaluation Tools to Project Customer Potential	100
D. The Early Stages of New Product Development
Cross-over Application of Enterprise Architecture and Modularization in Telco R&D	116
Enterprise Architecture in Innovation Implementation	132
Managing Technology Push and Market Pull within Pre-Product Development	145
Design Research in University-Industry Collaborative Innovation: Experiences and Perspectives	157
E. Transfer of Results and Exploitation
Transferring Technology Innovations to Operating Business Units	168
The Project Value Tracking Process at Deutsche Telekom Laboratories	180
Venturing for Commercialization of R&D Results	191
List of authors	203
Index	217