

---

Thomas Rudolph • Bodo B. Schlegelmilch
Josep Franch • András Bauer • Jan Niklas Meise (Eds.)

Diversity in European Marketing

Text and Cases

Contents

Preface	5
Part 1
Targeting Diverse Demographics and Managing Structural Diversity in Europe	13
1 Migration and Minorities in Europe	15
1.1 Background	16
1.2 Global Overview	17
1.3 European Overview	21
1.4 Acculturation Process and Ethnic Marketing	26
1.4.1 The Consumer Perspective	26
1.4.2 The Corporate Perspective	29
1.5 Challenges Facing Marketers	30
1.6 Case Study: Bankamiz	33
1.6.1 Targeting Immigrants in Financial Services and the Banking Industry	33
1.6.2 Bankamiz: A new division of Deutsche Bank for Turkish immigrants	34
Student Assignments	40
1.7 Case Study: KFC in France	41
1.7.1 KFC – Company Development	42
1.7.2 KFC expansion and KFC France	44
1.7.3 Muslim Religion	47
1.7.4 The Muslim Consumer	48
Student Assignments	51
Additional Readings	53
References	53
2 Fighting social isolation through a user-friendly mobile phone: Bazile Telecom	57
2.1 Introduction	57
2.2 Ageing consumers in Europe	59
2.3 Bazile Telecom: A start-up in user-friendly mobile phone and service	63
Student Assignments	73
Additional Readings	74
References	74

3	Changing Media Regulation in Europe: VIASAT3 in Hungary	77
3.1	Background	77
3.2	Main features of the European television scene and common European television regulation	78
3.3	The Hungarian Television scene at the Millennium	81
3.4	The Launch of Viasat3 and its Positioning	82
3.5	Regulatory burdens on regional and national television channels registered in Hungary	83
3.6	The growth of Viasat3	85
3.7	Business as usual: from Conflict to Conflict	87
3.8	What went wrong? Questions for the Management	88
	Student Assignments	91
	References	92
4	Managing early and mature markets in Europe: The UniCredit Group	93
4.1	Banking in Europe	93
4.2	Received Theory and Empirical Insights	96
4.3	The UniCredit Group	103
	Student Assignments	108
	References	109
Part 2
Acknowledging and Managing Diversity in Consumer Behavior in Europe
		111
5	Nostalgic Branding in Central Europe	113
5.1	Background	113
5.2	The Concepts of Nostalgia and Retro Branding	114
5.3	Branding in Central Europe	117
5.4	Changes of Consumers' Attitudes towards Local Brands	119
5.5	Kofola as an Example of a Revived Brand	125
	Student Assignments	129
	Additional Readings	130
	References	130
6	Diversity in European Retailing	131
6.1	European Retail Diversity	132
6.2	Introduction to Retail Strategy	136
6.3	Internationalization Strategies in Retailing	139
6.4	More with Less – The Aldi Approach to European Retailing	141
6.4.1	Introduction	141
6.4.2	Consistently Simple – The Aldi Business Model	142

6.4.3	Taking Aldi Abroad – Adapting a Standardized System to Local Needs	145
6.4.4	From Cheap and Commonplace to Chic and Convenient: Aldi in the United Kingdom	148
	Student Assignments	152
	Additional Readings	153
	References	153
7	Private Label Strategies in Europe	155
7.1	Private Label Evolution in Europe	155
7.2	Private Labels at Delhaize, Belgium	166
7.2.1	Delhaize’s 142 years of History	166
7.2.2	Development of Private Labels in the Delhaize Group	168
7.2.3	Conclusion	174
	Student Assignments	175
	References	176
8	The Consumer as a Co-Producer and Prosumer: Convenience Food Marketing	179
8.1	Background	179
8.2	History of Convenience Food	180
8.3	Recent Food Trends in Norway	182
8.4	Rieber & Søn and Toro’s Product Portfolios and Strategies	183
8.5	The Toro customer as a prosumer and the possibility of “I-made-it-myself-effects”	185
8.6	The Tikka Masala Experiment	188
8.7	Toro and the Competition	190
	Student Assignments	191
	References	192
Part 3
Responding to Diverse Marketing Environments and Managing Diversity in Europe		193
9	How companies organize their European Business: The Role of Regional Headquarters	195
9.1	Do Regional Headquarters Matter?	195
9.2	How Regional Strategy Can Add Value	198
9.3	Developing Regional Strategies and Structures	200
9.4	Managing Regional Headquarters	205
9.5	Puma and the Virtual Matrix Structure	207
9.6	Conclusion	214
	Student Assignments	216
	References	217

10	Managing consumer's experiences: Design as a solution for transformation	219
10.1	Introduction	219
10.2	From experience to transformation economy	219
10.3	Transformation Economy	221
10.3.1	What is transformation economy?	221
10.3.2	What constitutes a transformation?	222
10.3.3	How is value created?	223
10.4	Personal transformations	224
10.5	Case 1: ILLE-OLLA maternity clothing	224
10.6	Transformation of physical environments	226
10.7	Case 2: The SEEYOU project	227
10.8	Discussion	231
	Student Assignments	232
	References	233
11	European Market Entry – The Case of DeLaval	235
11.1	Introduction	235
11.2	Company Background	236
11.3	DeLaval in 2008	238
11.4	The Global Milk Business	241
11.5	The Supply Side: Dairy Farm Equipment Industry	244
11.6	How to go to Market?	244
11.7	Outline of a Customer Centric Go-to-Market Strategy	249
	Student Assignments	252
	References	252
12	Growing with the Wind: The Case of Vestas	253
12.1	The Wind Energy Industry – Leading the Transition to a New Energy Economy	253
12.2	Vestas Wind Systems – A Danish Niche Player's Journey to Global Leadership	257
12.3	Opportunities and Challenges in Remaining 'No. 1 in Modern Energy'	263
12.4	Outlook	270
	Student Assignments	271
	References	272
	Acknowledgements	272
	Authors	273