

Knowledge-Intensive Entrepreneurship in Low-Tech Industries

Edited by

Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen

*Professor of Economic and Industrial Sociology,
TU Dortmund University, Germany*

Isabel Schwinge

Research, associate and lecturer at the Chair of Economic and Industrial Sociology, TU Dortmund University, Germany

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Foreword by Franco Malerba	x
Preface	xii
1. Introduction: knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship in low-tech industries Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen and Isabel Schwinge	1
PART I CHARACTERISTICS, PATTERNS AND IMPACT
2. Exploring knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship in high-tech and low-tech manufacturing sectors: differences and similarities Yannis D. Caloghirou, Aimilia Protogerou and Aggelos Tsakanikas	17
3. Patterns of knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship in low-tech industries Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen	42
4. The impact of knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship on the growth and competitiveness of European traditional industries Ioanna Kastelli and Yannis D. Caloghirou	67
PART II STRATEGIES AND DEVELOPMENT PROSPECTS
5. Patterns and determinants of trademark use in Portugal Ricardo P. Mamede, Teresa F. Fernandes and Manuel M. Godinho	95
6. High-growth LMT firms and the evolution of the Russian economy Andrei Yudanov	117

7. The relevance of the 'dynamic capabilities' perspective in low-tech sectors 138
Aimilia Protogerou, Yannis D. Caloghirou and Glykeria Karagouni
8. Readjusting the perspective on LMT firms in product supply chains in light of knowledge-intensive activity 166
Isabel Schwinge

PART III POLICY ISSUES

9. Trapped by the high-tech myth: the need and chances for a new policy rationale 193
Attila Havas
 10. Policy measures for the promotion of knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship in low-tech industries 218
Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen and Isabel Schwinge
- Index 239