

INTERPRETATION THEORY:
Discourse and the Surplus of Meaning

Paul Ricoeur

TCU
PRESS

Fort Worth, Texas

CONTENTS

PREFACE	vii
INTRODUCTION	xi
1. LANGUAGE AS DISCOURSE	1
Langue and Parole: The Structural Model	2
Semantics versus Semiotics: The Sentence	6
The Dialectic of Event and Meaning	8
Discourse as Event	9
Discourse as Predication	10
The Dialectic of Event and Meaning	11
Utterer's Meaning and Utterance Meaning	12
The Self-Reference of Discourse	12
Locutionary and Illocutionary Acts	14
The Interlocutionary Act	14
Meaning as "Sense" and "Reference"	19
Some Hermeneutical Implications	22
2. SPEAKING AND WRITING	25
From Speaking to Writing	25
Message and Medium: Fixation	26
Message and Speaker	29
Message and Hearer	31
Message and Code	32
Message and Reference	34
A Plea for Writing	37
Against Writing	38
Writing and Iconicity	40
Inscription and Productive Distanciation	43
3. METAPHOR AND SYMBOL	45
The Theory of Metaphor	46
From Metaphor to Symbol	53
The Semantic Moment of a Symbol	54
The Non-Semantic Moment of a Symbol	57

The Intermediate Degrees between Symbol and Metaphor	63
4. EXPLANATION AND UNDERSTANDING	71
Beyond Romanticist Hermeneutics	71
From Guess to Validation	75
From Explanation to Comprehension	80
CONCLUSION	89
REFERENCE NOTES	97
INDEX	101