

The Morphology of the Times

European Cities and their Historical Growth

Ton Hinse

Contents

	Introduction	6
	The Morphology of the Times
	Greek and Roman Urbanisation	12
	Colonial town-planning as a strategy for empire building
1	Santa Cruz, Seville	28
	An expanding labyrinth of Moorish urban clans in the late Middle Ages
2	Botânico, Lisbon	64
	The 17th-century aristocrats flee the densely populated and dirty city
3	Capitale, Turin	94
	Baroque urban layout of a ducal and royal network in the 17th and 18th centuries
4	Esquilino, Rome	132
	Expansion of civil society in the last quarter of the 19th century
5	Poblenou, Barcelona	158
	A Catalan village wrapped up in the modern 19th-century Cerdà grid
6	Quartiers Modernes, Pessac	184
	Serial modern town-planning in a refracting colour scheme
7	Altstadt, Dresden	208
	Extremes: 20th-century destruction and reconstruction of the past
8	Vredenburg, Utrecht	248
	The bustle of present-day leisure and shopping in a historic city centre
	Appendix	286