

Startup Opportunities

KNOW WHEN TO QUIT YOUR DAY JOB

Second Edition

Sean Wise and Brad Feld

WILEY

Contents

Foreword	xiii
Preface	xvii
Trust Me, Your Idea Is Worthless by Tim Ferris	1
Chapter 1	What Is a Startup?	3
	How to Use This Book	5
	Who This Book Is For	5
	Notes	6
Chapter 2	The Democratization of Startups	7
	The Cost to Launch Is Approaching Zero	7
	The World Is Flat	8
	The Path Is Known	9
	Access to Capital	10
Chapter 3	Opportunities	13
	The Four Criteria for an Opportunity	13
	What Is Opportunity Evaluation?	14
	What Is the Cost of Poor Opportunity Evaluation?	16
	Execution Trumps Opportunity	19
	Risk, Uncertainty, and Ambiguity	21
	The Issue of Bias	23
	Notes	27

Chapter 4	Approaches to Opportunity Evaluation	29
	Where Does Opportunity Evaluation Fit into the Overall Startup Process?	29
	Overview of Business Model Generation	31
	Overview of Customer Development and Lean Startup	33
	Overview of the Disciplined Entrepreneur	35
	A Modern Version of the Scientific Method	36
	Notes	40
Chapter 5	People	43
	Team	43
	Working Full Time	47
	Been There, Done That	47
	Passion	48
	Coachability	50
	Ability to Attract Talent	53
	Business Acumen	53
	Domain Knowledge	55
	Operational Experience	55
	Mentors	56
	Board of Directors/Advisors	57
	Customers	58
	Social Capital	59
	Notes	60
Chapter 6	Pain	63
	Compelling Unmet Need	65
	Size	65
	Durability and Timeliness	68
	Notes	71
Chapter 7	Product	73
	The IOx Rule	73
	Rate of Adoption	75
	Rogers' (1976) Diffusion of Innovations Theory	75
	Intellectual Property	76
	Key Asset Access	77
	Proof of Concept—Selling Your Product in Advance of Making It	78
	Gross Margins	79

Scalability	81
Notes	81
Market	83
Market Stage	84
Product/Market Fit	87
Disruptive innovation	90
Industry CAGR	90
Distribution Strength	91
Customer Acquisition Costs	93
Viral Marketing	93
Competition	94
The Goliath Paradox	96
Barriers to Entry	97
Government Regulations	98
Partnership Status	99
Knowing Why You Need to Raise Money	99
Notes	102
Plan	105
Time to Launch	106
Plan to Scale	107
Reasonable Not Right	108
Get Out of the Building	111
Plan B	112
Notes	115
Pitch	117
Short Form (Under 10 Minutes)	118
Long Form (30 Minutes)	118
Business Plan—or Not	119
Executive Summary	121
Q&A	121
Notes	124
Raising Money	125
Building a Relationship with a Potential Investor	126
Who Makes the Ask?	127

	Use of Proceeds	127
	Raise the Least Amount of Money to Get to the Next Level	128
	Ask for Money from the Right Kind of Investor	129
	Raise Money When It's Available	131
	You Aren't an Exception	132
	Why Anything Other Than a Yes Is a No	134
	Be Realistic about Your Valuation	136
	Even Angels Have Investment Committees	137
	Notes	141
Chapter 12	Pitfalls	143
	Showstoppers and Red Herrings	143
	Excessive Valuation	144
	Taboo Businesses	145
	No Skin in the Game	146
	The No Asshole Rule	146
	The Key Person Dependency	147
	Drinking Your Own Kool-Aid	147
	Notes	150
Chapter 13	Don't Quit Your Day Job If You Aren't...	151
	Passionate about the Space	151
	Able to Execute the Solution	151
	Certain That the Problem Is a Need (as Opposed to a Want)	151
	Certain That the Problem Is Shared by a Large (and Growing) Market	151
	Able to Offer a Solution That Is IOx Better Than Anything Else in the Market	152
	Ready to "Burn the Ships"	152
	Able to Access Potential Customers	152
	Able to Spend Six Months without Personal Income	152
	Able to Garner Enough People, Users, and Money to Create a Minimum Viable Product	152
	Prepared to Get into the Weeds and Do the Grunt Work	152
Glossary		153
Acknowledgments		159

About the Authors

163

Index

165

Excerpt from Brad Feld's Venture Deals, Third Edition

173