

DESIGN RESEARCH FOR URBAN LANDSCAPES

Theories and Methods

Edited by

Martin Prominski and Hille von Seggern

CONTENTS

Notes on Contributors

Introduction

Martin Prominski and Hille von Seggern

- 1 Crossing fields: designing and researching Raumgeschehen
Hille von Seggern
- 2 Design research as a non-linear interplay of five moments
Martin Prominski
- 3 Navigating in urban landscapes – mapping as a navigational strategy in designing landscapes
Sigrun Langner
- 4 Walk with me! How walking inspires designing
Henrik Schultz
- 5 Design Comments – a dialogue-based approach to using designerly knowledge in transdisciplinary contexts
Katrina Wiherg
- 6 On playing and designing. Gaining knowledge and finding ideas through play during the process of designing urban landscapes
Christiane Kania-Feistkorn

7	Holding onto the land: a practice-based research project studying the anticipation of landscape transformations in rural areas Karin Helms	126
8	Urban landscape stories – narratives as a design research tool Anke Schmidt	144
9	Creating future research platforms Marie Markman	166
10	Setting out. Creative strategies for the beginning phase in large-scale landscape design Julia Werner	185
11	Conclusion: Perspectives for design work in design research Martin Prominski and Hille von Seggern	203
	Index	211