

MANAGEMENT RESEARCH

Mark Easterby-Smith,

Richard Thorpe and

Paul Jackson

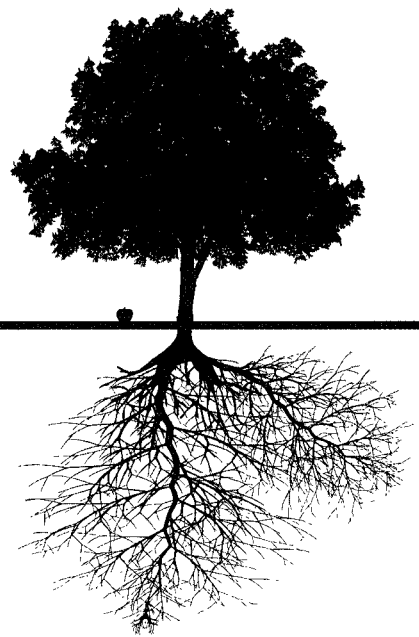

4th
EDITION

 SAGE

Los Angeles | London | New Delhi
Singapore | Washington DC

CONTENTS

About the authors x
Preface to the fourth edition xii
Acknowledgements xiii
About this book xiv
Companion website xvii

1

Introducing management and business research 1

Introduction 2
The nature of management and business research 2
What is management? 3
Skills and resources for management and business research 6
Levels and outcomes of management research 10
Is management research distinctive? 12
Conclusion 14
Further reading 15

2

The philosophy of management research 16

Introduction 17
The philosophical debates 17
Ontology: from realism to nominalism 18
Epistemology: positivism versus social constructionism 21
Linking ontology, epistemology and methodology 25
Strengths and weaknesses of the main traditions 27
Overviews of other philosophies 29
Conclusion 34
Further reading 35

3

Designing management research 36

Introduction 37
Epistemology and researcher engagement 38
Positivist research designs 39
Constructionist research designs 48
Case method and grounded theory 54

Mixed methods	61
Common design dilemmas	65
Contributing to theory	68
Contrasting views on validity and reliability	70
Research design template	70
Conclusion	73
Further reading	74

4The politics and ethics of management research 75

Introduction	76
Political influences on the research question	77
Politics of access	90
Ethics	95
Utilization of research	97
Conclusion	99
Further reading	100

5Reviewing the literature 101

Introduction	102
What is a literature review and what is its purpose?	102
Preparation for the literature review	103
Elements of literature review	105
Alignment with study context and approach	111
Sources of information	114
Conclusion	123
Further reading	124

6Creating qualitative data 125

Methods for qualitative data collection	126
Collecting data through language	127
Collecting data through observation	140
Understanding data through interaction	151
General concerns related to the collection of qualitative methods	157
Conclusion	159
Further reading	160

7Framing qualitative data 161

Introduction	162
Analysing natural language data	162
Content analysis and grounded analysis	163
Computer aided analysis	171
Social network analysis	196
Discourse analysis	198
Narrative analysis	200
Conversation analysis	202

- Argument analysis 204
- Gaining knowledge through interaction 208
- Conclusion 219
- Further reading 220

8 Creating quantitative data 221

- Introduction 222
- Sampling design 222
- Sources of quantitative data 229
- Questionnaire design 238
- Conclusion 242
- Further reading 243

9 Summarizing and making inferences from quantitative data 244

- Introduction 245
- Summarizing and describing data 249
- Going beyond a sample 259
- Conclusion 277
- Further reading 277

10 Multivariate analysis 278

- Introduction 279
- Multivariate analysis of measurement models 284
- Multivariate analysis of causal models 291
- Conclusion 312
- Further reading 312

11 Writing management and business research 313

- Introduction 314
- The skills of writing 314
- The content of reports and dissertations 319
- Writing up the literature review 322
- Outputs and evaluation 325
- Plagiarism 329
- Dissemination strategies 332
- Conclusion 334
- Further reading 334

- Answers to exercises 336
- Glossary 339
- Bibliography 348
- Index 360