

History in Management and Organization Studies

From Margin to Mainstream

Behlil Usdiken and Matthias Kipping

Routledge

Taylor & Francis Group

NEW YORK AND LONDON

Contents

List of Illustrations	xi
Acknowledgments	xii
1 Objective: Finding History in Management Research	1
Introduction 1
Let's Look to the Past: History Is Back, or Was It Ever Gone? 1
Like Hot Cakes: The Recent Popularity of History 1
Who Cares? Little Regard for Histories of Managers and Management 3
Crazy About History? Management and Organization Studies 5
Separated in the Past, Rejoined in the Present? 9
Who Kicked History Out: "Science" or Sociology? 9
Can the Twain Ever Meet Again? 11
Let's Have Another Look: History Is Already There, Kind of 15
As Stated Before: More Than Meets the Eye 15
Haven't We Seen This Movie Already? Opening the Package. . . 17
. . . And Displaying Its Contents 19
PART I
2 Origins: History and Management Becoming "Sciences"	29
Introduction 29
Always There: The Ever-Present Hand of History 30
Early and Everywhere: Origins of Written Histories Around the Globe 31

	Scientizing History and Historicizing Everything: The Rankean “Revolution”	34
	Beyond a Single Truth: Multiplying the “Houses of History”	38
	A Bumpy Road: Developing Business and Then Management Into a “Science”	40
	Late, Diverse and Difficult: The Origins of “Business” Schools	41
	Thirsting for Legitimacy: Early Claims to “Science”	42
	Getting There—And Globally: Turning Management Into a “True” Science	46
	Conclusion	50
3	Aspirations: Bringing History and Management Studies (Back) Together	54
	Introduction	54
	Anybody Out There? Contacts Between Historical and Business and Management Research	55
	Roads to Nowhere: Missed Opportunities	55
	Lonely Hearts: Business Historians and “New Look” Management Studies	58
	Unrequited Love: Management Indifference From the 1960s Through the 1980s	59
	Feeling Nostalgic: Growing Calls for “More History” Since the 1990s	62
	Whole Lotta Love: Increasing Diversity as History Attracts Greater Attention	65
	Turning Where? Business History, History or Postmodern History	66
	Turning How? Searching for Some Form of “Synthesis”	68
	Above and Beyond: Extending the Historic Turn in Organization Studies to Other Domains	72
	Conclusion	73
4	Evidence: Identifying History in Top Management Journals	79
	Introduction	79
	Needle in a Haystack? History in the Management and Organization Studies Literature	80
	Previous Surveys and Their Limitations	80
	Objectives and Scope of the Present Survey	81

- And Then There Were Two . . . Types of Studies With a Historical Dimension* 84
- Two Souls: History and Theory in Management and Organizational Research* 87
- Backing It All Up: History as Evidence and a Source of Data* 87
- In the Driving Seat: History as Part of Theoretical Models* 92
- Putting It All Together: A Framework for Combining History and Theory* 93

PART II

- 5 Beginnings: Early Writings on Management History 103
- Introduction* 103
- When It All Began: Early Histories of Management* 104
- Ideas Matter: The Transition Toward Histories of Management Thought* 107
- Setting the Stage: Initial Exemplary Works* 107
- Making It Count: Histories for Practitioners by Consultants and Managers* 110
- Staying in the Shadows: Limited Contributions by Academics* 112
- Enter "Theory", Kind of: Going Beyond Management History* 116
- Conclusion* 119
- 6 Orthodoxy: Establishing and Defending Classic Management History 124
- Introduction* 124
- Claiming a Place in the Mainstream* 125
- Bringing It All Together: Publication of the First Textbooks* 125
- Progressing . . . a Bit: Further, Albeit Limited Expansion of the Literature* 128
- Drifting to the Margins: The Effect of "Scientization" on Management History* 132
- Closing Doors: Reduced Publication Opportunities in Mainstream Management Journals* 132
- Doubling Down: The "Classic" View Persists* 134

Still Focusing on Individuals: From “Pioneers” to “Innovators” and Back 137

Conclusion 139

- 7 Alternatives: Emergence and Expansion of Critical Views 145
- Introduction* 145
- ‘Twas All Rather Different: Revisionist Histories* 146
- False Starts: Labor Process Theory and Critical
Management Studies* 146
- Talk Matters: Theorizing the Evolution of Management Discourses and Models* 147
- . . . And So Does Context: “Politicizing” the History of Management Thought in the US* 150
- ‘Twas the Total Opposite, Actually:
Counter-Histories* 154
- Cue in Foucault: Archaeologies and Genealogies* 154
- Cue in Latour: ANTi-History* 158
- Other Worlds: Expanding the Critical Perspective
Geographically* 159
- Moving Beyond the US: Comparative and Diffusion
Studies* 159
- Better to Be Different? Institutionalizing a Critical and International Perspective* 162
- Conclusion* 164

PART III

- 8 History to Theory: Institutional Theories and Process Studies 171
- Introduction* 171
- Which Way? Two Institutionalisms on Different Paths
From History to Theory* 172
- How It All Started: Institutionalism From the TVA to a Theory of “Organizational Character”* 173
- Bring in the New: Developing Neo-Institutional Theory* 175
- Here Come the Dynamos: Institutional
Entrepreneurship and Institutional Work* 179
- Holding It All Together—In a Dynamic Way:
Institutional Logics* 182

*What's Going On? Unrealized Potential in Process
Studies of Organizations and Strategy* 184
Looking Inside: Process Organization Studies 184
Inside Looking Out: Strategy-Making 187
Conclusion 190

- 9 History to Theory: Organizational Ecology, Economics,
Resource Dependence 196
- Introduction* 196
- Who Wants to Live Forever: Organizational Ecology* 197
- The More, the Merrier—Up to a Point: Density
Dependence* 198
- Scale or Scope? Resource Partitioning and Community
Ecology* 201
- That Rare Beast: Qualitative Studies* 202
- And the Twain Did Meet: Organizational Ecology and Institutions* 203
- Where You Belong: Categories and Categorization* 207
- Not Much There: History and Organizational Economics* 210
- Nor Here: Resource Dependence* 213
- Conclusion* 215
- 10 History in Theory: Imprinting and Path Dependence 220
- Introduction* 220
- History Leaving a Lasting Presence: Imprinting* 221
- Its Own Past: Origins and Early Studies* 221
- People Matter: Founder Characteristics and Organizations* 223
- Context Matters: Initial Institutional and Economic Environments of Organizations* 226
- The Past Really Matters: History, Institutional Logics
and Organizations* 229
- Local Matters: Community-Level Imprinting and Institutional Legacies* 231
- Staying on Track: Path Dependence* 234
- How It All Started: Origins and Definitions* 234
- How It Works in Practice: Organizational Path
Dependence* 236

	Parallels and Crossings: Path Dependence in Institutional Persistence and Change	238
	Conclusion	240
11	History in Theory: Ecology, Strategy, Co-evolution	246
	Introduction	246
	Origins Matter Here, Too: Organizational Ecology	247
	What Starts Well. . . : Founding Conditions and the Density Delay Model	247
	When Things Get Sticky: Structural Inertia and History Dependence	250
	The Ever-Present Past: Population History and History of Competition	253
	It Stays in the Family: Parents and Progenies	256
	Survival Strategies: Resources, Routines and Dynamic Capabilities	257
	It Pays to Be Early: First Movers	258
	Managing the Past: History as a "Resource"	259
	Change Is Back: From Routines to Dynamic Capabilities	261
	A Way Out? Combining Imprinting and History Dependence in Co-evolution	264
	Conclusion	267
12	Not a Conclusion: Multiple Ways Forward	272
	Introduction	272
	Main Findings in Brief—Very Brief	273
	No Hope in History—Well, Maybe a Little	275
	History in the Present: Uses of the Past	281
	Toward "Historical Cognizance": Contextualized Theorizing	287
	Cognizant vs. Universalist: Big Business in the US	289
	From Comparisons to Cognizance: "Management" Goes Global	290
	Cognizance in the Mainstream: Institutional Logics and Beyond	292
	This Is the End . . . Not Really, Since There Is More to Come	294