

Thomas Bieger

Marketing Concept – The St. Gallen Management Approach

2nd, revised edition

Haupt Verlag

Contents

Table of figures	13
1 Business processes and marketing concept within the St. Gallen Management Model — an introduction	17
1.1 Case study LÄDERACH	17
1.2 Value-creation processes, enterprises and management	20
1.2.1 Value-creation chains and processes	20
1.2.2 Organizations, enterprises and management	24
1.2.3 Enterprise and environment	26
1.3 Embedding of business processes in the St. Gallen Management Model	28
1.3.1 Stakeholders	29
1.3.2 Environment	31
1.3.3 Environments and sustainability	33
1.3.4 Structuring forces	34
1.3.5 Business processes in the St. Gallen Management Model	36
1.4 Objectives of business processes	38
1.5 Structure of business processes	42
1.5.1 Service-provision processes	43
1.5.2 Customer processes	46
1.5.3 Innovation processes	49
1.6 The marketing approach for the management of business processes	51
1.6.1 Development of marketing	51
1.6.2 Planning approach in marketing	53
2 Market analysis as the basis for market-oriented business management	55
2.1 Case study MAMMUT	55
2.2 Customer behavior and markets	57

2.2.1	Definition and role of markets	57
2.2.2	Players and market types	58
2.2.3	Motives, needs, benefit and demand	63
2.3	Market research objectives and data generation	69
2.3.1	Identifying market sizes, needs and decision-making	69
2.3.2	Supply-and-demand trends	73
2.4	SWOT analysis as a synthesis of market analysis	81
3	Marketing strategy — from market segmentation to a positioning strategy	85
3.1	Case study JURA	85
3.2	Marketing objectives	87
3.2.1	Corporate objectives and marketing objectives	89
3.2.2	Interaction of marketing objectives	90
3.3	From market segmentation to a positioning strategy	93
3.3.1	Segmentation criteria and segmentation level	93
3.3.2	Choice of target market	98
3.3.3	Positioning	98
3.4	From customer processes to tool strategy	99
3.4.1	Determinants of tool application	99
3.4.2	Focus on marketing tool application in the marketing mix	104
4	Product design and performance	107
4.1	Case study STADLER RAIL	107
4.2	Product design	109
4.3	Performance provision — physical product	115
4.3.1	Basic structure of the performance process	115
4.3.2	Strategic decisions	117
4.3.3	Operational decisions	121
4.4	Performance provision — services	123
4.4.1	Characteristic features of services	124
4.4.2	Performance design and control of the service process	128
4.4.3	From service chain to service blueprint	130

5 Marketing tool application	135
5.1 Case study JUNGFRAUBAHN	135
5.2 Pricing policy	137
5.2.1 Neoclassic pricing model	138
5.2.2 Behavioral-science pricing models	140
5.2.3 Functions of pricing	142
5.3 Distribution policy	145
5.3.1 Functions of distribution	146
5.3.2 Distribution design	147
5.4 Communication	150
5.4.1 Role and function of communication	150
5.4.2 Organizational scopes of communication	152
5.4.3 Communication change	154
5.5 Marketing mix	155
5.5.1 Objectives of the marketing mix	155
5.5.2 Planning the marketing mix	156
6 Integration into a business model, controlling and innovation	159
6.1 Case study Swiss web portal	159
6.2 Integration into a business model	161
6.3 Marketing controlling	164
6.3.1 Development of a controlling concept	165
6.3.2 Characteristics of marketing controlling	167
6.3.3 Contribution accounting	168
6.4 Innovation	170
6.4.1 Functions, roles and tools of innovation	170
6.4.2 Return on innovation	172
6.4.3 Innovation in models	173
6.4.4 Innovation's directions of impact	175
Bibliography	179
Alphabetical Index	197