

SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP

A PRACTICE-BASED APPROACH TO SOCIAL INNOVATION

J. HOWARD KUCHER

Associate Professor of Social Innovation, The University of Maryland, Baltimore, USA

STEPHANIE E. RAIBLE

Assistant Professor of Social Innovation and Entrepreneurship, University of Delaware, USA

CONTENTS

About the authors	vii
Foreword by Tom Lumpkin	viii
Acknowledgements	xi
A note on "tone of voice" and joint authorship	xii
PART I SOCIAL, COMMERCIAL, OR BOTH?
1 Crazy Little thing called love	2
2 The basics of entrepreneurship still matter	32
3 Social entrepreneurship is messy	54
4 The field is extra-disciplinary	74
PART I CASE STUDY
DC Central Kitchen: from barroom to breadline	95
PART II WHO CARES?
5 The basics of product development	98
6 It springs up from the ground: idea generation and community assets	112
7 Social Change Theory as product design	132
8 Outputs or outcomes	150
PART II CASE STUDY
DC Central Kitchen: from nonprofit to social enterprise	167
PART III WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE?
9 Metrics matter	170
10 Marketing has three faces	190
PART III CASE STUDY
DC Central Kitchen: spread the love	207

PART IV HOW DOES TH IS WORK?

11 Finance follows function	210
12 Form follows function: operating models first, legal structures second	228
13 Global perspectives on legal and operating structures	246

PART IV CASE STUDY

DC Central Kitchen: who's driving the cart?	268
---	-----

PART V YOU KNOW IT WHEN YOU SEE IT

14 Don't worry, be happy	271
--------------------------	-----

PARTV CASE STUDY

DC Central Kitchen: westward ho!	279
----------------------------------	-----

Appendix: sample business plan	281
---------------------------------------	-----

Index	292
--------------	-----