

Tim Skern

Writing Scientific English

A Workbook

3rd edition

Chapter 1

An introduction to scientific English	15
1.1 Advantages and disadvantages of English	15
1.1.1 British or American?	19
1.2 Formal English, the language of science	21
1.2.1 Complete sentences	21
1.2.2 Punctuation marks	22
1.2.3 Write out all verb forms	25
1.2.4 Avoid starting sentences with “and”, “but”, “because” or “so”	25
1.2.5 Avoid ending sentences with “too”, “also”, “though” or “yet”	26
1.2.6 Avoid “get”	27
1.2.7 Avoid vagueness, sensationalism and exaggeration	27
1.2.8 Using “the” and “a”	28
1.3 Words for writing scientific English	31
1.4 Take-home messages from Chapter 1	34
1.5 References	34
1.6 Improvements to exercises	34

Chapter 2

Writing clear scientific English	37
2.1 Eight guidelines for improving your writing technique	37
2.1.1 Make a plan	37
2.1.2 Use a clean and legible layout	38
2.1.3 Use paragraphs	39
2.1.4 Write simple sentences	39
2.1.5 Write positive sentences	41
2.1.6 Write active sentences	43
2.1.7 Omit needless words	43
2.1.8 Read and think about your work	45
2.2 Just to make you feel better	45
2.3 Take-home messages from Chapter 2	48
2.4 References	49
2.5 Improvements to exercises	49

Chapter 3

Applying the fundamentals	51
3.1 Summarising the text “Fighting for Breath”	51
3.2 Improving four summaries of “Fighting for Breath”	54
3.3 Writing abstracts for scientific presentations	63
3.4 Improving four abstracts	64
3.5 What is science?	74
3.6 Improving four texts on “What is science?”	78
3.7 The five most common commands and comments from improved texts in Chapter 3	86
3.8 Take-home messages from Chapter 3	87
3.9 References	87

Chapter 4

Constructing a scientific manuscript	89
4.1 The process of publishing original data in a scientific manuscript	89
4.2 Planning a scientific manuscript	95
4.3 Writing a scientific manuscript	99
4.3.1 Prepare the figures and tables	100
4.3.2 Describe the figures and tables	104
4.3.3 Write a first draft of the “results”	105
4.3.4 Write a first draft of the “discussion”	108
4.3.5 What about writing a combined section entitled “results and discussion”?	110
4.3.6 Write a first draft of the “introduction”	113
4.3.7 Write a first draft of the “title”, the “abstract” and the “keywords”	114
4.3.8 Write a first draft of “materials and methods”	117
4.3.9 List and sort the references	119
4.3.10 Write the “acknowledgements”	121
4.3.11 Write the “abbreviations”	121
4.4 Assembling and improving the model manuscript	122
4.4.1 First draft of the model manuscript	124
4.5 Editing and refining a scientific manuscript	129
4.5.1 Improved model manuscript	130
4.6 Take-home messages from Chapter 4	134
4.7 References	135

12	Chapter 5
	Practising writing and improving scientific manuscripts	137
5.1	Improving the quality of bread	137
5.2	Your views on human activity and global warming	147
5.3	Measuring biodiversity	151
5.4	Stereotypic Man	157
5.5	Searching for the best firewood to reduce global warming	163
5.6	Is there a connection between eating organic food and cigarette smoking?	168
5.7	The six most common commands and comments from improved texts in Chapter 5	175
5.7	Take-home messages from Chapter 5	175
5.8	References	176
	Chapter 6
	Easing the pain: writing whilst researching	177
	Chapter 7
	On your own	181
7.1	Resources	184
7.2	The comments that I use to correct texts in my course	187
7.3	A reading list to improve your vocabulary and your scientific writing	188
7.4	Some tips for oral presentations	199
7.5	References	199
	Chapter 8
	The scientific vocabulary of this book	201
8.1	Linking words	201
8.2	Words from the basic scientific lexicon	202
8.3	Words that extend the basic scientific lexicon	204
8.4	Exercises using texts from Nature and Science	205
8.5	References	209
8.6	Words that you wish to add	209